THE 1952 MIRROR

JEAN MACKINNON, Editor-in-Chief
NANCY LARCOM, Business Manager

"Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for?"

Bill was a worker, not afraid to reach, to try. Shortchanged on inches, he rated top rung in plans, in ambition. And Bill had a friendly appeal for all of us with that man-sized grin of his.

It isn't hard to remember him sweating over an unknown in Hedge or a fast dribble down the court with the fellows, for it wasn't so very long ago.

As his classmates, his buddies, his roommates, we feel Bill's still here with us—not just in our book but in our hearts—for he was a fellow who possessed a deep, friendly warmth and an earnestness which none of us can forget.

Necessary adjustments

". . . may her sons exalt her name . . ."

Inky carries on tradition

First row: D. Moore, Oration; T. Orlandella, Toastmaster; C. Gordon, Toast to Coeds.

Ivy Day Toast Excerpts

To the Faculty: "Alice went to Wonder-Bates on a "specifically penetrating day" and was directed to "a most particularly pleasing tea party. . . ."

To the Seniors: "Not long after the class of '51 became acquainted and had put Uncle Johnny Stanton on the shelf along with Washington, Lincoln, McArthur. . . ."

To the Coeds:

"To analyse these charming creatures
And present some of their desirable features
. . . Thank the Lord for the Bates Co-ed."

To the Men: "May the goldfish settle well, may peanut butter always remain in the Commons, and above all may you remain just as you are—fascinating and wonderful . . ."

"When the deep purple falls . . ."

Cornerstone laid, 1856

Hathorn Hall

The laying of the corner stone for Hathorn Hall was no mean affair as the entire Lewiston fire departments, leading citizens, school children, clergymen, and members of the Lewiston Water Power Company, accompanied by an extensive five division parade and two brass bands, turned out for the momentous occasion.

It was a real event, for here at last was a place to hold classes and chapel. Downstairs, in the rear of the building where the present mechanical drawing room is located, students were soon to attend chapel services about a huge, pot-bellied stove. A later move would place chapel in the former barn-like room upstairs, once the heavy, wooden pews were moved into position.

Robinson

Because Miss Schaeffer was away on Sabbatical leave, the Robinson Players offered no major production during the first semester. The Players concentrated their time and talents on the four acting lab groups which met weekly under the direction of four junior and senior members of the club. Scenes from well-known plays were discussed and prepared for presentation at the monthly meetings which also emphasized the inter-relation of all phases of theatre work.

"There Shall Be No Night"

Players

In December, an adaptation of "A Child is Born" was presented for the campus, directed by Miss Murrell. With Miss Schaeffer's return to campus at the beginning of second semester, rehearsals began for the March production of Robert Sherwood's play, "There Shall Be No Night," a powerful drama of Finland during the second World War. The May production, Moliere's play, "The Miser," was given arena-style, making the first attempt at "theatre-in-the-round" at Bates.

Hedge Lab

In the time of "Foxy" Jordan, '70, (Chemistry Department head from 1889-1921) Hedge Laboratory was known as the coldest spot on campus. The trouble maker was a big cupola which was supposed to ventilate the gasses out, but which managed to suck all lingering heat up along with them and leave students shivering in the big recitation room, known today as Lab 8, or the laboratory, replaced now by a stockroom. A big change resulted when Alumni Funds and the Kresge Foundation's combined efforts added a well-equipped, two-story wing to the odoriferous little building.

Elimination of the tennis courts beside Hedge solved another problem for faculty forced to compete with the lusty squalls of players.

Roger Williams Hall

Fifty-seven years ago one did not walk into Roger Bill to look at the cutbook or cash a check. Instead, sessions of the Cobb Divinity School met in the spacious chapel, running from coat rack to fireplace, at the far end. If a member of the Maine Ministers Institute wished to catch up on his reading, he had only to stroll across to what is now Mr. Ross' office, browse through an adequately-stocked library, and seat himself in Miss Libby's present domain to read his papers and books.

What would have been this devout group's reaction to the change in their chapel, during World War I, to a Y.M.C.A. Recreation Hut?

Coram Library

It's a far cry from the spring of 1912 when visitors to the library tried vainly to study to the accompaniment of spine-chilling moans, ferocious piano rolls, and stammered speeches outside on Coram's steps in preparation for the annual Greek commencement play.

The Greek plays were not alone in making their exit, for today the blonde furniture and woodwork, new staircases, charging desk, fluorescent lighting, spacious Payson Room, and steel beam supports have replaced the dated walnut finish, narrow stairs (which accounted for a good many bruises) and the false pillars which concealed six-inch-thick lalley columns over by the display case.

Rand Hall

Back in 1905, when any Bates man had coeducation in mind, he turned his steps toward the second floor reception room of Rand, the social hall of the campus. The four center posts in Fiske Reception Room, which later were surrounded by dining tables, were then encircled by cushioned settees with stiff-backed wicker chairs completing the interior decoration. At college parties the house mother had a busy time of it peeking over each of the screens separating portions of the room.

Three times daily the women tripped downstairs to the first floor large dining room for meals served from the adjoining kitchen (later affectionately dubbed "the butt room").

Libbey Forum

It seems coeducation was not strictly limited to Rand Hall events, for the donors of Libbey Forum especially designed a four room building with spacious hall for that purpose.

In those "good ole days" of no Saturday classes, members of both Y's and the three literary societies —the Eurosophian, Polymnian, and Pierian—eagerly met Friday nights in their respective rooms and afterward gathered out in the wide corridor. Each Bates man would then sedately walk his miss down the street toward the establishment of the beloved George Ross, colored proprietor and class of '04. Den and Hobby Shoppe combined, this was the only place to treat the young lady.

Carnegie Science

While Andrew Carnegie's conditional gift of $50,000 in 1908 made possible the science building of lecture rooms and laboratories we know today, Carnegie Science has seen a much fuller use of space within the past twenty years through the efforts of Professor Emeritus, Fred E. Pomeroy, and the late Dr. Lloyd W. Fisher.

Chapel

Architect Jefferson Randolph Coolidge, lineal descendant of the Virginia Jeffersons and Randolphs, designed a structure which soon boasted a six-day-per-week, compulsory chapel attendance from 8:50 to 9:00 a.m. (classes running on the hour and morning sessions completed by 12:00 noon).

Most morning services were of a pretty conventional, religious type, included responsive readings, and were in accord with the outlook held by each individual professor leading the day's service. The absence of an amplification system often made hearing impossible.

Christian Association

The C.A. not only offers its services to Bates and to the community, but also affords students a challenge to become working members, helping others. Religious Emphasis Week stimulated interest through the Skeptics Hour, dorm discussions, and practical philosophy of Dr. Calhoun and Dr. Bertocci. Realizing that daily actions are the only way to increased campus activities, services to students and faculty, community cooperation, and opportunities to foreign students, C.A. commissions strive in those areas. Religion and its practical application is the challenge C.A. presents to us. Its success depends on our cooperation.

"Shylock", as his customers called him, maintained a pretty tidy little business down on Wood Street, as he was the sole keeper of the books needed by students for their courses. When the college finally bought this trustee out and established a small bookstore where the present Lane Room is now located, a great step in progress seemed assured.

The changing of a Y.M.C.A. meeting room, with stiff-backed chairs like the Little Theatre's, into the comfortable Men's Lounge of over-stuffed furnishings, along with the fulfillment of the original plans for a Men's Memorial Commons, Den, and Bookstore, were even greater modernization trends.

Candles on the mantle, curtains at the windows, steak on the tables —the Outing Club officers, which includes not one but three vice-presidents, and the directors are now ready to sit down to their annual spring banquet at Stanton Lodge.

Over the delicious steak the conversation points to a general agreement that the $500 for lumber and material, plus the $539.23 labor bill for the construction of the cabin in '25, was an investment which has payed dividends. Even the $21.64 stove has proved its worth in lending a hand to the traditional campfire method of cooking hotdogs and coffee for hundreds of picnickers at the spring all-college picnics.

Athletic Plant

For sixty years, a church-like affair, known as "the old gym", stood behind Parker Hall, and supplied the physical education directors and their boys with plenty of splinters from its soft wood floor. But on a still night in June, 1925, the old wooden frame burst into a fiery blaze, supposedly taking with it the invaluable mementos of Oliver Cutts, '96, including a letter from President Theodore Roosevelt.

One-half year later, at Christmas time, the treasured mementos were placed on Mr. Cutt's doorstep.

"Cause unknown" was the published statement, but one can only note, with tongue in cheek, the abundance of fire helmets donned by the class of '26 at their last reunion.

Track

Featuring an otherwise unrewarding season in varsity track was a 63½ to 62½ win, the first in several years, over Worcester Poly. The varsity was plagued all year by a lack of depth and weightmen. Led by veterans Nate Boone, Bob Goldsmith, and Curt Osborne garnering their share of points, and aided by such promising sophomores as Roger Schmutz, Joseph Green, Win Rice, and Tom Halliday, the Bobcats did well in most of the running events. However, with the exception of John McDonald, they fared poorly in the weights. Coach C. Ray Thompson's freshman team was loaded with talent and went on to an undefeated season which saw them triumph over such strong foes as the Bowdoin frosh and the University of New Hampshire frosh. Outstanding for the Bobkittens were Paul Friedman, Doug Fay, Cal Jodat, Buzzy Bird, Ed Holmes, Phil Cowan, Stan Barwise, and Bob Chumbook.

Norm Brackett drives in for a lay-up.

Varsity Basketball

Bates basketball enthusiasts had little to yell about this winter as the varsity squad had one of the poorest seasons on record. Out of a 24-game schedule, the hoopsters could only win two, a 91-59 rout of the Farmington State Teachers, and a surprising upset victory over Bowdoin, 77-69. In State Series play, the Bobcats landed in the cellar by dropping three games each to Colby and Maine and two out of three to Bowdoin. During the Christmas vacation, the squad played seven games in the New York area, losing to Adelphi, Iona, Brooklyn Poly, Queens, New York A. C., and Hofstra, an ambitious slate for any squad. The seventh game with Wagner was halted during the third period when the lighting system failed. Captain Larry Quimby again led the team in scoring, while Charlie Bucknam and Ken Weiler hit double figures regularly. Al Goddard, Jim Brymer, and Jim Moody played good floor ball to aid their high-scoring teammates. Although going through such a disappointing season, the squad kept trying and improved considerably during the last few weeks of the campaign.

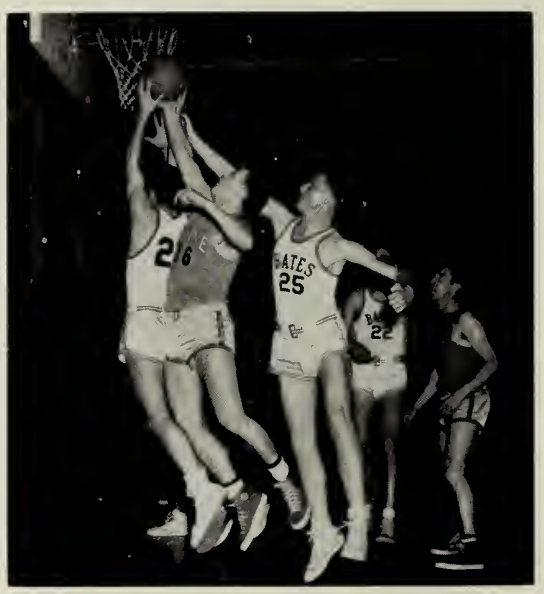
Frosh hook in the Colby game.

Freshman Basketball

After losing their opening game to Lewiston by a 66-65 score, the freshman basketball team went on to play a high brand of ball and compile a 12 and 5 record, including a treasured win over the Colby Frosh. Coach Robert Hatch's Bobkittens were hurt by long layoffs due to exams and vacations. Captain-elect George Schroder sparked the team in scoring, and along with such players as Smith, Chumbook, Morton, Burke, and Ward will undoubtedly aid future varsity squads.



Rebound battle under the Maine basket.

Up for two in the intramural league.

Intramurals

This year's intramural program was set up to encourage greater participation. Touch football, the season's first intramural sport, saw a Chick Leahey sparked Sampsonville-Off-Campus combo take the championship. In volley ball competition, the North team first whipped Bardwell and then beat South to capture the playoffs and volley ball crown. The intramural basketball program featured the installation of a three league system. First round play ended with Middle the winner in the American League, while North (Morris) and North (Rubenstein) were the respective winners in the International and National Leagues. In the spring, softball highlighted the program.

Tennis and Golf

Nine dual matches and the state tournament held on the Bates courts featured the spring tennis season. Under the direction of Coach Lloyd H. Lux, the Bates squad faced Clark University and Boston College in a trip to Massachusetts, M. I. T., Bowdoin, Maine, the University of New Hampshire, and Colby. Back from last year were George Cory, Walt Reuling, Colin Carter, Al Goddard, Roy Craven and Frank Stred to bolster the team. The golf team, coached by James V. Miller, teed off against the University of Rhode Island, Clark University, Maine, Colby, and Bowdoin. The state tournament was held at Augusta this spring with all Maine colleges competing.

Varsity Football

The varsity football eleven, hampered by injuries to key players and lack of depth, completed a dismal eight-game schedule with seven losses and one tie. The team opened in the Yale Bowl by losing to the Bulldogs by a 48-0 score. The Bobcats suffered a severe blow in this game when Captain George Brinkerhoff broke a leg and was lost to the squad for the remainder of the season. Home town hopes were further dimmed in the next contest won by Massachusetts, 21-7, when Quarterback Dave Harkins also suffered a broken leg. At Springfield, the Garnets dropped a tough contest to the Gymnasts, 34-12. The next Saturday the Garnets came close, but had to settle for a 13-13 tie with Tufts. Northeastern rolled over the hapless Cats, 41-13 in a rough tilt in Brookline. In the State Series, the squad could do no better, losing to Maine 26-7, Bowdoin 27-12, and Colby 13-6, although all of these games were close. Richie Raia, outstanding for the Batesmen all season in his backfield slot, was named to the All-Maine team. Seniors Berry, Boone, Brinkerhoff, Douglas, Ovian, Jones, and Sevigny completed their inter-collegiate football careers at the end of the season.

Coach Pond

After eight seasons as head football coach at Bates, Raymond "Ducky" Pond resigned the post early in December. Although hampered by lack of depth and material in his squads, Ducky posted a creditable record of 24 games won, 34 lost, and one tie. His outstanding team was in 1946 when the Bobcats won all seven of its regularly scheduled games and went to the Glass Bowl in Toledo. Robert W. Hatch, who compiled a fine record as freshmen football coach for the past three years, was named to succeed Pond as head coach.

Freshman Football

For the second time in three years Coach Robert Hatch's freshman football team completed an undefeated season. The Bobkittens initiated the season by pasting Maine Maritime Academy 28-7 and followed up with a thrilling 13-12 victory over the University of New Hampshire Freshman. In the third contest, the Hatchmen nosed out Maine Central Institute and wound up the four-game slate with a convincing 19-6 win over Hebron Academy. Big Herb Morton of Ashland, N. H. captained the squad which should give added strength to next year's varsity eleven.

Cross Country

The varsity cross country squad continued a two-year drought by dropping all of its four meets last fall. In the opener at Orono, Oct. 6, the Maine Harriers dumped the visiting Garnets, 17-44. Northeastern handed the Batesmen their second loss by a 15-47 margin on the home course. At Burlington, the Bobcats lost to Vermont, 15-46, and concluded a poor season at Worcester by losing to Worcester Poly, 20-35 in the closest meet of the season. Casavant, Goldsmith, Halliday, Schmutz, Harley, and Eastman did well considering the opposition they were up against. The Freshmen harriers had no better luck, winning one meet and dropping three. After the season, it was announced that cross country would be dropped from the list of fall sports.

Varsity Baseball

Coach Bob Hatch's varsity baseball squad took the diamond this spring in an 18-game schedule. Opening with Colby at Waterville April 16 and closing with the Mules on Garcelon Field May 23, the Bates nine squeezed its rather lengthy schedule into little more than a month. In addition to the somewhat cramped schedule, the Garnets were further handicapped by having only seven of their 18 contests at home. The feature of the slate was a four-day trip south, with the Bobcats meeting the University of Rhode Island, Providence College, Clark University, and M.I.T. In addition to the usual State Series games, three each with the Maine colleges, the Garnets faced Gorham State Teachers, the University of New Hampshire, Tufts, Northeastern, and Trinity. A double header against Maine was played May 20. Coach Hatch had regulars Dave Harkins, Captain John Wettlaufer, Fred Douglas, Dave Purdy, Richie Raia, Norm Hammer, and Dick Berry back from the previous year, but faced the big problem of finding a keystone combination to replace Shirley Hamel and Nestore D'Angelo. A strong pitching staff of veterans Andy McAuliffe and Larry Quimby, along with last year's freshman chucker, Dick Bergquist, aided the home cause considerably. This mound corps gave the Bates baseballers perhaps even better pitching than the previous season when the Bobcats placed second in State Series play behind MacAuliffe, Quimby and grad Ted Coshnear.

Freshman Baseball

Featuring the difficult schedule faced by the freshman baseball team were games with such strong contenders as the Colby frosh, Maine Central Institute, Hebron Academy, and Coney High. Last year's freshman baseball team suffered especially from a lack of good hitters. Henry "Hank" Elespuru, starting his second year as coach, was encouraged by the fine performances turned in by frosh in track, football, and basketball. The question remained as to whether the freshman baseballers could keep pace with the other frosh teams. Herb Morton, an accomplished pitcher, loomed as the big man in the pitching department for the Bobkittens. John Hodgkinson gave promise of rounding out the pitching staff. The versatility of the freshman athletes could be seen in the fact that many of the frosh football and freshman basketball players were candidates for positions on the baseball team. In the Bobkitten's outfield George Schroder, David Crowley, Jerry Dubrow, and Dick Ehrenfeld were among those contesting for starting roles. In the infield Gene Soto, Bob Atwater, Paul Barbera, and Spencer Hall displayed their diamond talents. The catching department seemed to possess a little more depth with Ernest Ern, Bob Reny, and Charlie Kass all fighting for a starting berth. Inclement weather forced the frosh to do much of their early season practicing in the cage.

Women's Union

Once the panel between the two living room bookcases was put into place and the butler's pantry transformed into a coat room, the first floor of the former White residence, on Frye Street, was ready for teas and coeducational events. Meanwhile, the two bedrooms, upstairs, were fast becoming lounges, with the removal of closets and the insertion of French doors between the two. Down in the basement, men were working at converting a dirt floor cellar into a cement-surfaced game room, lounge, and meeting room, in preparation for the opening of the Women's Union.

Alumni were later to add gifts of silver and a refrigerator, for the benefit of coed cooks, to the new social center.

Student Government

The Woman's Student Government Association continued to serve the feminine portion of the college by carrying on its annual Big Sister Program, Freshman Reception, Debibbing, and Installation. Stimulated by an apparent lack of genuine interest and cooperation on the part of students, faculty, and administration, the Board formulated a plan for the establishment of a Faculty Advisory Board, which it sincerely believed would promote a greater understanding among all campus groups and would also create a dynamic school spirit.

Student Council

The 1952 Student Council accomplished the following: inaugurated a petition system to foster better student interest in Student Government, conducted the "Big Brother" program and a Freshman Men's Banquet, was chairman of the Cheerleading Committee, took charge of rallies, busses, and lunches for States Series' football games, ran the Chase Hall Tourney and Smoker, took a very active role in student discipline, and conducted an All-College Election and a Mayoralty Campaign. Otherwise, the Council tried to better the "general welfare" of students.

Smith Hall

The dormitory with two sites, George Carroll Smith Hall, very nearly found itself between Hedge and Hathorn, but for the crash of the early thirties. (Ceremonies were even held, at which the President turned the first spadeful of earth on the site.)

Naval headquarters and county center for air raid warnings during the last war, fireproofed Smith Hall can never lay claim to use as a Divinity or Latin School, as can Nichols Hall, or rather what is now called John Bertram Hall.

It can, however, boast of an all-female population during the close of the war years—the first and only time that lace curtains adorned its windows.

Completed, 1946

Sampsonville

Cut some surplus barracks apart, haul them six miles from the Auburn airport, and put them together again with the aid of derricks—that's the way to build a Sampsonville.

Throw in heat, light, gas, and refrigeration for $45.50 a month, a little inventiveness in the way of paint or prints, and 25 to 30 mischievous members of the pint-sized variety, and the picture is complete.

Whether reading a newsy little sheet (The Sampsonville Sun), put out in '47 by their favorite adviser, or stringing diapers on a line over at the Little Theatre in a play entitled, Me 'N' The Missus, Sampsonville couples really have some fun for themselves.
